CAST MEMBERS PARTICIPATING IN TEST PROGRAM TO SAVE DOLLARS

Members in VanPool I during the test program currently in operation include driver Billy Hinton, Heather Womack, Ken Alderman, William Hantz, Robert Maxwell, Dewey Craig, Walter Selecki, John Delk, Gary Hutchison and William Tebow. VanPool 2 riders include driver Jack Lahew, Dick Cox, Craig Hutchinson, Kevin Woulfe, Joe Sauter, Linda Grier, Joe Medeiros, Bill Williamson, Ken Eby and Frank Cornelius.

Believe it or not, each of these cast members is estimating that he or she could save up to $1,000 over the next year as pioneer riders aboard VanPool 1 and VanPool 2 . . . and all are having a great time while they do it!

Pioneers? VanPool 1 and VanPool 2 . . . are they future space explorers from the Cape? No, it's 20 men and women from our Landscape Department who chose to be participants in a test program in commuter tranportation called van pooling . . . a fairly new concept in the South, but one which has a proven track record in our northern states.

It all dates back to 1973, when the 3M Company in Minneapolis was faced with the problem of building a new parking deck downtown to accommodate their employees. Their engineers estimated that the deck would cost the company $2.5 million, money they could not recover through selling their products, but just to provide parking for the hundreds of cars coming into the facility daily.

Their staff looked into numerous methods of commuter transportation, one of which was a concept they called van pooling. The program began with six vans, and has expanded until today they operate over 100, with a tremendous savings in parking space and personal gasoline consumption. In fact, the 3M Company has removed over 1,000 cars from Minneapolis' crowded streets and is saving over 200,000 gallons of gasoline a year!

And 3M isn't the biggest van pooling company around either, the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) currently has 325 vans operating to their power plants daily! And they are saving over 650,000 gallons of gasoline per year!

The fuel slowdowns and energy crunches of recent years have caused Walt Disney World to recognize employee travel distances as a growing problem . . . as the price of fuel goes up, so is the amount spent by cast members driving to and from work. The energy crisis of 1973-74 underlined the problem dramatically.

In addition to programs like our Computerized Car Pooling and "Share-A-Ride", the Cast Activities staff began looking even further over a year ago, including the concept of van pooling. As a result, two vans are currently being tested, with spectacular results to date.

But first, what is van pooling? It's a program in which Cast VanPool, Inc. was founded as an independent non-profit company to supply vans to groups of 10 employees for commuting purposes, and they, in turn, share all operating expenses as well as receive personalized pick-up and delivery service from their homes to work.

One van currently services the Kissimmee/St. Cloud area, with the other coming in from Azalea Park/Union Park. And both have proved to be a big hit with their members. They love it because each enjoys a roomy, comfortable seat, and are able to read the paper or converse on the way to work, instead of having to cope with traffic.

And each member is saving money while enjoying the ride. Based on studies done by the U.S. Department of Transportation, Department of Energy, various local governments, universities and private research companies; reliable data is available on the actual costs of operating an automobile. These costs have been broken down by the mile and include such factors as gasoline, maintenance, oil, tires and depreciation, but do not include insurance on the vehicle. A cost-per-mile figure was also arrived at for van pooling, which included all of the above, as well as insurance and the leasing fee for the van itself.

All of these figures have been broken down into a per person rate, based on one person driving a car or 10 people sharing a van. Based on a 70-mile round-trip commuting distance, all you need do is look at the attached table titled "Commuting Costs" for the price you pay in getting to and from work daily. If the figures look high to you, just remember that they reflect all of the little hidden costs you never think about when driving your car.

Another factor to consider while driving in our energy-short world, is that the two test vans this year alone will save 20,000 gallons of gasoline and remove the pollution spit out by 20 cars.

As we stated earlier, the van pooling concept is still in the test stage. The pilot program is being carefully studied by Cast VanPool, Inc. to determine if van pooling can be implemented. EYES & EARS will keep you updated throughout the months ahead on our two test vehicles, and will notify you of the results.

So, until van pooling is available, remember to keep your speed down to conserve gasoline, car pool whenever possible, and follow all of the other energy tips to save fuel.

CAR CARE TIPS

Each year we all spend a large amount of money on automobile fuel and maintenance. But a lot of that money could be put to better use if we had taken the time to use preventive maintenance before the minor problems became major ones.

This new column in EYES & EARS is devoted to helping you spot those minor problems and correct them before they become a major expense. And with preventive maintenance keeping your vehicle in top shape you'll also conserve fuel!

In this series we'll discuss just what you should look for before you buy a car . . . what the warranties cover and don't cover. We'll also look into tire maintenance, engine maintenance and driving techniques which improve fuel mileage and prevent wear-and-tear on your vehicle.

If you have a specific question on vehicle maintenance you'd like answered, contact the EYES & EARS office at extension 4655 and we'll find the expert with the correct answer to your problem for an additional article for our Car-Care Tips column.

We're sure that every cast member will find this column useful in helping maintain their vehicle.

FOR YOUR BENEFIT

Among our many benefits we all receive as cast members is a special service to help us help ourselves — Continuing Education Programs.

Last week we talked about Educational Reimbursement, a benefit for those cast members who wish to continue their education on subjects directly related to their job which is not offered here at Walt Disney World.

Continuing Education is a means of bringing education to you, either to improve your present skills or to offer you information on a subject for your own interest.

The Disney University is presently working with several local colleges as well as Orange County Adult Education to bring courses to you. Throughout the year the University offers language courses, business courses, secretarial courses and personal interest courses which meet in the University classrooms or in conference rooms throughout the property.

To make use of the Continuing Education Programs available to you is quite simple. Each quarter and semester course offerings are listed in the EYES & EARS. To register simply stop by the Disney University on the first floor of the Center Building or call the office at extension 4744. School and class registration paperwork will be completed the first night of class and you'll be on your way to learn!

If you have any specific questions concerning our Continuing Education Program feel free to contact the Disney University at extension 4744 to have all your questions answered!

"It Takes People"

After reading an article in "Mother Earth" magazine, Nick Sowell of our Reedy Creek Fire Department was certain he had found the ideal way to supplement his income . . . but his wife wasn't as convinced. Nick had read an article on chimney sweeps. His wife Vicki, a former Walt Disney World cast member, didn't think there were enough chimneys in Florida to keep a chimney sweep busy, but together they looked over the area and discovered that there were plenty of chimneys and at least 68% of all the new homes built were including fireplaces . . . and chimney sweeps were few and far between. Since his shift at the Fire Department has him on duty 24 hours and off duty 48 hours, "moonlighting" as a chimney sweep works out perfectly. Nick sent away for all the brooms and brushes he would need and got to work. His first chimney belonged to his mother-in-law, who according to Nick is a meticulous person, and he was sure that if she was satisfied with his completed job he would make a good chimney sweep. Well the finished product passed her inspection and his business was on the way. It took awhile before people heard about him, but after an interview on the Carole Nelson Show on Channel 9, business began to pick up. Now Nick finds he's cleaning anywhere from three to six chimneys each week. His wife Vicki no longer works, but spends her time raising their three children and taking care of all the bookwork involved with their chimney sweep business. When Nick is working he follows the old traditions of the chimney sweeps from England leaving out only the black tuxedo tails. He dresses in black from head to toe, including a tall black top hat. Nick says this keeps him from getting too dirty while he's cleaning out chimneys, although he says it still takes him a minimum of thirty minutes to scrub off the soot! Chimney sweeps have been long considered "good luck" and people would cross a street to shake hands with a chimney sweep centuries ago. Nick says that this tradition goes back to the days when house fires were quite common in England. If a chimney sweep had cleaned the area no homes would catch fire . . . therefore people thought the chimney sweeps brought the "good luck" (actually they cleaned off all the debris that could catch fire). Nick told us that every fireplace should be cleaned every two years to avoid flume fires, and oil stoves should be cleaned every two to three years. Nick really enjoys his first career as a firefighter but has developed a new love for the art of chimney sweeps. One day he'd like to move his family to the mountains and spend his time growing their food and cleaning chimneys as his full time profession!

Here at Walt Disney World we have constantly strived to offer our guests the finest entertainment package available at all our "live" entertainment locations . . . and for Bob Cross of the Talent Booking Department of Entertainment, this has meant a full time job! Bob began his career in entertainment at the tender age of six when he began piano lessons and before too long he found he had mastered at least seven or eight instruments! He left his home state of California to accept a music scholarship to the University of Kentucky where he attempted to study pre-med. But the long hours of a musician finally wore him down and those 8 a.m. chemistry classes just didn't seem as important as the 2 a.m. shows he was performing in! It was while he was in college that Bob organized the Bob Cross Orchestra. This "college group" stayed together for 29 years performing all over the country in some of the finest hotels. They eventually settled down in Washington, D.C. where they played with some highly regarded performers. Bob Cross was named the music chairman for the Nixon Inauguration while he was living in the capital. He also broke in a few shows for "new" performers . . . Liza Minnelli for one! She enjoyed working with Bob so much, in fact, that she asked him to join her in Miami to open her show there. On his return trip to Washington, Bob stopped by the Walt Disney Preview Center to find out what we were planning in Orlando. While he was there he dropped off a business card and was surprised when he received a call from Bob Jani asking him to come for an interview. It came as quite a surprise when Bob discovered he was busier here than he's ever been before! In addition to booking all the talent for the Top of the World dinner show, our Village Lounge and conventions, Bob is also the Leader of the Top of the World Orchestra. For the past seven years Bob has been extremely busy. But he does try to find time for his other interests, particularly his two daughters and four grandchildren. He also likes to relax by listening to music . . . he's a "sound buff" and has an extensive record and tape library. He also enjoys dabbling in photography.

CAST ACTIVITIES NEWS

EXPERIENCE 200 YEARS OF HISTORY IN FOUR PACKED DAYS

A lot of us visited Washington, D.C. during our last year of grammar school. We rode up in trains and buses, spent hectic days being jostled about from one over-powering monument to another, from one packed museum to uncountable government headquarters buildings. Some of the names were familiar, some were new. But the real fun was being away from home, on an adventure in a strange city with all of our grammar school friends.

It was truly an adventure, but most of us were too young to appreciate all that was shown to us, to appreciate visiting the very heart of our nation's growth, its present status, its future.

We're grown up now, but many of us still remember the mystic of those white marbled buildings, of the neatly layed out streets lined with bureaucratic offices and monuments to our founding fathers.

Cast Activities has put together a trip this April back to Washington, D.C., a trip designed to package all that you want to see in four-long-days of sightseeing and experiencing this unique city.

Set for departure on April 27, this cast trip includes four full days of sightseeing, arriving early Friday morning and departing Monday evening. The cost is $299 per person (based on double occupancy) and includes all of the following . . . round-trip air transportation from Orlando to Washington, D.C.; a three-night stay at the Gramercy Inn (only five blocks from the White House and other attractions); four days of guided tours; all admissions, taxes and tips pursuant to the itinerary; two dinners; and theater tickets to the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Here's a brief look at the itinerary, designed especially for our group.

Friday, April 27 — Breakfast flight to Washington's National Airport. Five hours of sightseeing aboard a motorcoach to the White House and Ford's Theater. Check-in at Gramercy Inn, followed by a welcome dinner at a local restaurant. Then a night tour of Washington sights, including Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, the Iwo Jima Memorial and Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Saturday, April 28 — Subway transfer to Mall area to visit the Smithsonian Institution's various museums and galleries. Tickets this evening to the Kennedy Center's current play.

Sunday, April 29 — Five hours of sightseeing by motorcoach of Arlington National Cemetery's Changing of the Guard and gravesites of Robert and John F. Kennedy, Embassy Row, National Cathedral, Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, and the Washington National Zoo. Dinner at a local restaurant with evening free.

Monday, April 30 — Subway transfer to Capitol Hill to visit the Supreme Court, Library of Congress, and the Capitol itself. Following lunch, a four-hour sightseeing tour by motorcoach of Mount Vernon and Old Town Alexandria. This is followed by a dinner flight back to Orlando.
